The trees have a lot of lichen and moss on the bark since they are all from the edge of a swampy area. Eventually I need to remove the lichen/moss to burn in a fireplace. Neither of these leave pleasant odors in the house and it's probably not good to breath them anyway. I started to clean the logs with a wire brush but it's a lot of work.

One easy way to remove weeds and moss from paving is using a hand-held gas blow torch to burn away the greenery. The tool is called a butane weed wand. This is a good way to kill the weeds you want especially between the joints of paving slabs and block paving. There is no crouching down to remove the weeds.

6 Ways to Remove Weeds and Moss From Paving

Be cautious when wood is covered in moss and lichen growth as these may create too much smoke for an indoor fire. Layer the pile with both hardwood and softwood to ensure a speedy start, and a slow finish burn. Cherry, Hard Maple, Oak, and Birch are considered hardwoods (Oak and Hard Maple being the hardest, longest-burning wood choices of the lot).
